

Let Stories Inspire Learning

In today's high pressured, digital era, parents often struggle to find ways to connect and engage with their children. In this workshop, parents will be provided with theme-based Chinese picture books to encourage their child's motivation while supporting language learning.

Why Let Stories Inspire Learning?

Everyone likes stories, but not everyone loves to read. Many children are reluctant readers and find reading difficult and boring, especially if they only equate reading with school reports or assessments. By allowing stories to inspire learning, you provide children with the intrinsic motivation to read by tapping into their interests and curiosity.

"Children need adults in their lives to show them how to better understand make a story their own. We best support them in this endeavour by having conversations that engage children in the stories they read." Diane Frankenstein, author "Reading Together".

What you get:

The course is divided into 4×2 hour sessions. The first session discusses motivation and learning an approach on how to make use of picture books, with various theme to illustrate the importance of motivation for learning.

The second session delves towards language learning; how picture books could help enrich language acquisition and development. Most importantly it is to exercise language learning through the bonding and sharing between parents and children.

The third session discusses the use of "dialogic reading"; how to converse with children, drive inquisitive learning and to scaffold and enrich children's knowledge.

The fourth session deepens the concept of learning and how "happiness" blends into learning through stories and inspires the learning mind; it introduces a variety of favourite books to inspire a love of reading and learning.

Group learning through role play and insights will be shared for a fun and interactive workshop.
